

Michał Sawa, Dariusz Grech

Random matrix approach in analysis of correlations in financial data

We present a method based on random matrix approach that enables to distinguish a role of auto-correlations and cross-correlations in financial data. The proposed algorithm is applied to financial data from WIG index family.